The Professional Service and Funeral Facilities features of the Funeral Service Profession are difficult to analytically categorize. Prices listed on paper do not take into consideration important subtleties such as decor of the facility and personalities of the staff. The individual's needs and desires to make value judgments are critical. Empirical evaluation is essential.

Strong emotions are generated when death occurs. These emotions cannot be intellectualized. They must be worked out and through. This is important for the mental and physical well being of the person or persons who have suffered a loss. Experience has proven that the funeral with all its functions and ceremonies, is the most efficient vehicle for beginning the adjustment process for bereaved people. As a component of the health care delivery system, we are here to help at a time of crisis and need. Please discuss your concerns with us.
